

Atlas Copco

A tough breaker for every job

All rock breakers were NOT created equal.

The Atlas Copco range of rock breakers has been tested in the toughest quarrying and contracting conditions around the world for 40 years.

All models are robustly designed and feature a compressed air function that keeps the area between the piston and tool free from dust.

MIMICO is the New Zealand distributor for three ranges of Atlas Copco breaker:

The SB Series

These breakers are ideal for small contracting assignments and feed size reduction for crushers in quarries.

Their patented one-piece housing design produces a much tougher breaker - a lighter machine that can take the harsh and often careless treatment breakers are subjected to.

This is the toughest, most reliable small breaker on the market, suitable for use with carriers up to 10 tonnes.

The MB Series

Atlas Copco's combined gas/oil power principle means the MB range is both powerful and highly flexible with regard to oil flow rate and pressure. Atlas Copco's technically advanced percussion mechanism reduces unavoidable vibrations.

This range is ideal for road work, trenching, demolition, recycling, plus primary and secondary rock breaking.

This range is compatible with a broad range of carriers from 10-34 tonnes.

The HB Series

Heavy duty hydraulic breakers can now be found in rock quarries, performing primary and secondary breaking jobs as a cost-effective alternative to blasting.

- optimized energy conversion and smooth running
- constant impact energy irrespective of oil flow rate from the carrier
- suitable for carriers from 26-120 tonnes.
